Swedish interior design company AB Living Design specialise in design, procurement, FF&E and installation for the hospitality industry. Having completed more than 110 hotel projects to date, their most recent assignment is the Presidential Suite at the Kempinski Hotel Geneva, Switzerland, thought to be the largest presidential suite in the world (bathroom pictured). Projects undertaken by Living Design reflect different styles from classic, contemporary through to modern, cosmopolitan and innovative. CEO Tarek Hegazy's philosophy is that hotel design is an art; it has a clear objective and that is to ensure that the end product portrays the image and aspirations of the hotel and its owners within the given budget. Living Design has demonstrated their diverse interiors with a variation of styles and cultures in hotels such as Grand Hotel in Stockholm, and Kempinski Moika in St Petersburg.

TEUCO SORGENTE

The Sorgente recreates the visual and acoustic effects of a natural spring using hidden technologies to bring the natural world into the bathroom. The unique hybrid of bathtub and hot tub allow it to be filled for a single use, or remain full for constant use. In the latter case, a revolutionary heating and filtering system means that everything is totally automatic and self-treating with no intervention required by the user. It features a unique cladding system which can be personalised in any material from stone to marble to wood, thereby enabling the tub to harmonise seamlessly with its surroundings. Likewise, controls are touch screen and unobtrusive. The Sorgente, or source, effect is created thanks to the presence of a recirculation system that enables the water to be in continual movement, thus providing an infinity overflow effect from the edges of the bathtub itself.
